A Helpful Wish

If I were to have the magic power, I would help dogs and prevent them from being abused. The reasons why I long to save dogs can be articulated as follows. To begin with, more and more dogs in my hometown are poisoned to death recently. Some heartless villagers throw the poisonous drugs to the ground and even some set the traps to capture dogs with fatal devices. Secondly, animal abuse will be reported on TV from time to time. I never hear the news without pondering upon over the question, what makes those crazy people assume that they have the right to mistreat animate creatures which are in the position equal to us? Hence, I wish that I would be able to rescue the dogs in need as many as possible.

After I save those dogs, the earth will become a wonderful world where humankind and dogs can get along with each other harmoniously. Those who lost their minds to hurt dogs will no longer do such brutal things any more and realize the importance of respecting other beings. What's more, loyal dogs will be willing to become the best friends of people, accompanying their keepers all the time, stopping them from feeling lonely. Adorable dogs will no longer pass away miserably or lead a tragic life. The above-mentioned images will be my ideal world if I could truly carry out the wish. What a peaceful earth it will be! I think that I can never understand those mindless abusers' notion. And I really look forward to the advent of the perfect world.
